

Seven-Point Program for City Unveiled by Lyman

Seven major programs to help Torrance keep pace with the demands of tomorrow were unveiled today by Councilman David K. Lyman.

In the plan outlined as part of Lyman's campaign for reelection, he called for a concentrated effort on the part of all councilmen to continue focusing their attentions on the critical needs of the community.

"We have been able thus far to lay the groundwork for action in the next four years," said Lyman. "Now it is time to put these ideas into being."

THE PROGRAM detailed by Lyman calls for these projects:

• Golf course—Plans for a municipally operated golf course—at no cost to the taxpayers of Torrance—should be pursued. Not only would such a facility provide recreation for thousands, but income to eventually ease the tax burden of property owners, Lyman said.

• Civic auditorium—With Torrance fast becoming an economic center of the Southland, and with its spiraling cultural growth, the need for a civic auditorium is unprecedented. A center capable of accommodating all these requirements should be built as rapidly as possible.

• Roads—In the past four years, many roadway improvements have been authorized by the city council. The council's public works committee, of which Lyman is chairman, already is under way on plans for other major roadway improvements to help meet the demands of the motoring public.

• Parks—The Torrance Recreation Department has succeeded in making the city one of the Southland's most envied centers of leisure time activity. Plans for a regional park currently are being studied by the city council, and if approved, work on the project should get under way soon. With more and more leisure time being made available, Lyman said, there is a growing need for facilities and programs to meet the interests of all age groups.

• Community beautification—A joint effort between the city, the utility companies, the property owners, and the government should be initiated.

Sports Car To Be Given Area Mother

A 1968 Chevrolet Camaro on display in the mall at Bullock's Fashion Square will be given to some lucky mother.

All mothers in the Torrance-South Bay area have been invited to enter the contest by picking up a ballot in one of the Fashion Square stores.

No purchase is necessary to enter the contest. A similar contest will be conducted for Father's Day.

All that is required to enter the Mother's Day contest is that each entrant be a mother.

ed immediately to prepare a plan for the undergrounding of unsightly utility poles. "Torrance has become a kind of financial and residential wonderland," Lyman said. "It is up to us to see that the blights of the past are removed so that the community is regarded for its aesthetic zone, beautification, roads, public buildings, and other municipal programs can be correlated, he emphasized. The same program could later be applied to other sections of the city to accomplish a community-wide upgrading.

• Police—Law enforcement in Torrance has reached an all-time high. Accusations of low morale have been replaced with praise for professionalism. Manpower is at its authorized level. Recruitment has become easier, with no lowering of standards. In short, Torrance has one of the nation's most highly regarded police departments, Lyman said.

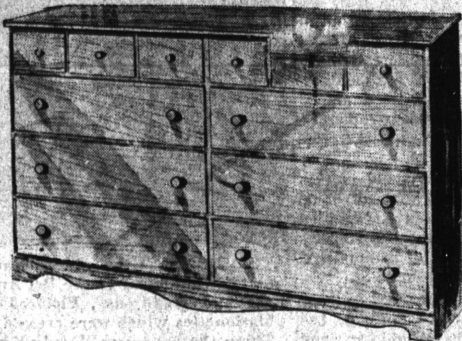

The department should be given every possible assistance by the council to make its level of service maintained.
